duates of the last class are men of great pro and will be heard from later in life, obtaining their legrees under conditions which indicate pluck, perseverance and industry. "The Record" says: who will practise law in Boston, is a Maine boy of thirty. His father died sixteen years ago. He has supported himself throughout his college course. His work has been chiefly book canvassing. ourse. His work has been chiefly food canvassuit, in which he employed many men, he himself acting as manager. His work in the summer of 1888 netted him $1,700. His work has been remarkable, as he leaves college with a balance of $5,000 clear of all expenses. His living last year cost him about $1,300, and he thinks $1,000 will also cover this year's outlay. In 1887 he received an honorary mention in the his-tory and subsequently was graduated with a standing

"D. C. Torrey at the age of eleven' went to work for the Glendale Elastic Fabric Company. At nine-teen he, in company with his brother, founded 'The Southampton News,' and subsequently they bought out 'The Enterprise' of that place. In 1886 he out 'The Enterprise' of that place. fassed the entrance examinations at Harvard. At the end of his freshman year he took a Bowdoin prize of $250. He has tutored more or less, the greater part being in the senior year. During his ophomore and junior year he, with C. H. More, '89. he ministry of the Methodist Church.

"Cartis Hidden Page, age twenty, without condi-ons, has taken two Price-Greenleaf scholarships of 800 each, one in the fall of 1888 and the other in He has done a great deal of tutoring in French and English, the usual price for tutoring eing 82 an hour. He has completed the requisite number 18 4-10 courses required by the university and in the fall of 1888 the Savage prize of $300, and again in 1889 the Price-Greenleaf prize of $300. He has employed his spare time tutoring while at college and during his vacation in 1888 was employed by the insurance brokers' imm of George A. Bell & Son, and in that of 1889 for Valentine Bergen & Co., by whom he had previously been employed.

"J. I. Tryon was born in Boston, November 21, 1864. It was always his intention to go through Harvard, but he lacked means at this time. He has done good work on newspapers in Portland and Boston and Bangor. He entered Harvard as a special student and has spent two years on courses bearing on journalism—history, English, political ecohomy and modern languages. It is his intention to join the class of 1892 in the autumn and take a fanchelor's degree. He is a good stenographer and operator upon the type-writer. He neither asked nor received aid from the university, but thanks to Secretary Rowles, he found copying and work as a secretary for members and officers of the faculty.

"H. R. Gladhill was born in 1869. He entered the university in the fall of 1888, and in the first year he not only carried successfully the regular work of the freshman course, but in addition removed all the bars to his admission to full and regular standing of the present junior class. Not only has he accomplished this, but he has also taken high reink among his classmates, standing well up among the first twenty-five. He has received every year a share of the annual prize money of the college and now at the end of his junior year, has already received the requisite number of marks to entitle him to a degree magna cum laude."

BOMETHING THE MATTER WITH SHAD. Birmingham, Conn., July 5 (Special).-The Con-

Fish Commission to-day ordered Commis sioner Chalker to discontinue hatching shad at the Housatonic Dam. The season has been an unusually one for hatching throughout the entire State and ip and down the length of the Atlantic scaboard. quantities of the fish have been taken, but only a few of them were ripe enough to yield spawn. None of the officials in the Connecticut Board can assign any cause for the condition of the fish. Four million shad were hatched during the season. Commissioner Chalker says that another season like this one will make shad almost as scarce in the Connecticut rivers as in the rivers of the Middle States.

THE BANK STATEMENT.

Saturday, July 5- p. m. By the operations of the New-York Sub-Treasury in the five days ended last Thursday night, which included the receipt of $101,000 for exchange on other Sub-Treasuries, and the payment of $260,753 for purchased bonds, the New-York banks gained $4,584,054 cash. In addition to this it is known that the interior movement of money during the week was in favor of three millions of dollars, which probably will not be rectified until the statement of next week. the reported loss in cash calls for a gain to the deposits of $6,900,000; instead of which the deposits are reported increased $8,777,600; a difference of $1,800,000. It is idle to attempt an ence of $1,800,000. It is the to attempt analysis of a statement which bears its own evidence of error as does to-day's bank statement. By the statement the surplus reserve is reduced $2,706,600, leaving it at $3,846,950, against $5,018,025 July 6, 1889; $24,316,800 July 7, 1888, and $6,352,450 July 9, 1887.
